The wine's character

Fixin red wine is delicately colored, yet surprises with a structure often dominated by tannin—more robust than refined. With good acidity, it shows strength and weight, placing it among the wines suited to moderate aging. In its youth, the wine exudes savage aromas—fur and musk. This is a structured wine with a bouquet that blossoms beautifully over time.

Terroir, origin, and identity

The lieux-dits for our Village appellation wines in Fixin include "Aux Crais", "Petits Crais" (as listed in the 1828 cadastre), and "En Crechelin". The toponym crai refers to stony terrain—gravelly subsoils formed by rounded stones atop a layer of clay, deposited by glacial alluvium that once filled the Saône Valley. Vines thrive in this type of soil when the crai is covered by a sufficiently thick layer of topsoil.
